WW Feed & Supply recommends using Starter/Grower to feed your laying breed chickens age 0-20 weeks of age. Depending on our supplier, this 18-20% protein non-medicated feed. Keep under heat lamps and provide fresh water.

Once your chicks start producing eggs, WW Feed & Supply recommends you switch to:

- Egg layer “Complete” - This 16% protein feed is designed as the sole ration to meet the needs of chickens age 21 weeks or older. We have it in either crumbles or pellets.
- Egg layer “Balancer” - This 20% protein crumble is designed to be fed with scratch or other grains & oyster shell.
- Scratch Grains - This is a mix of milo, cracked corn and wheat that we mix ourselves from locally grown grains.

Pricing / Fees

Prices on this handout INCLUDE shipping and handling, if hatched between March 1 and May 24, 2019.

- A $9 fee will be charged at other times of the year, if less than a full box is ordered.
- Orders less than 25 chicks, 30 bantams, 15 ducks, 20 turkeys, 8 geese or 25 guineas will be charged a $1 small order surcharge for each breed or sex ordered. Minimum of a special order is 5 per breed.
- Pay half down when ordering. Orders must be picked up within 24 hours of arrival, or care fees will be added.
- Easter is April 21, 2019. We get baby poultry in several times each week throughout the spring season, but certain breeds may not be available and certain orders may cost more right before Easter, due to hatchery demand.

Safe Handling Tips

It is important to care for your newly adopted poultry, but you must also protect yourself. Salmonella, a common cause of food borne illness, can be spread by direct contact with animals that carry the bacteria. See posted safety tips.
